It is now recognised that providing spiritual care for older people is an essential part of person-centred care. For many, this is a new aspect of their role as a carer or leader, but one that provides great benefits for the carer and those being cared for alike.

“It is clear that spiritual well-being in older people has a positive impact on their emotional wellbeing and adjustment to illness and treatment” (Mackinlay, 2001)

“The seminar had great speakers, that stimulated new thoughts, very useful indeed.” – Melbourne participant

“Encouraging, informative, challenging and motivating.” - Brisbane participant
